Green Story: “Sustainable Comfort Across the Southwest” – The Latona Leisure Group

At Latona Leisure Group Hotels, we believe that exceptional hospitality can and should go hand-in-hand with environmental responsibility. Across our collection of unique hotels in the Southwest, we're taking meaningful steps to reduce our environmental impact while enhancing guest comfort.

Webbington Hotel & Spa – Biomass-Powered Hospitality in Axbridge

Nestled on the slopes of the Mendip Hills, the Webbington Hotel & Spa now runs its central heating and swimming pool using a biomass pellet heating system. A renewable energy source that drastically cuts carbon emissions. This shift not only supports cleaner energy but ensures our guests enjoy warmth and wellness with a greener conscience.

Leigh Park Hotel – Smarter Heating in Bradford on Avon

Overlooking the scenic Wiltshire countryside, Leigh Park Hotel has taken multiple steps toward sustainability. New sash windows have been installed to enhance insulation and reduce heat loss. Following an in-depth energy survey, the number of hot water cylinders were cut by 50%, drastically reducing energy consumption. External lighting is now controlled by sensors, ensuring lights are used only when needed. And in our kitchens, new energy efficient ovens help us cook sustainably without compromising quality. Each of these improvements helps us deliver modern comfort while honouring our environmental commitments.

Limpley Stoke Hotel – Charging Toward a Greener Future

Our historic Limpley Stoke Hotel near Bath is now future-ready, with electric car charging points installed for eco-conscious travellers. Guests arriving in electric vehicles can explore the countryside sustainably knowing that their journey, and their stay, supports a cleaner planet.

Walton Park Hotel – Energy Efficiency with a View

Perched on the cliffs of Clevedon, the Victorian-era Walton Park Hotel has been enhanced with new energy-efficient windows to retain warmth and reduce energy usage. We've also added electric car charging stations, so guests can enjoy seaside charm while staying true to their environmental values.

From coastlines to countryside, each Latona hotel is writing its own green chapter one investment, one initiative, one stay at a time. We're proud to be part of a growing movement that proves sustainability and hospitality are not just compatible they're essential partners in building a better future.
